

This reminds me of the early days of satellite television when local stations were not available. XM radio is delivering a requested service to a growing market. When seeking local weather and traffic, I am constantly skipping between stations hoping to find it. I normally give up in frustration and switch over to a CD. Satellite radio at least is a better alternative!